Golfers Gather Jan. 12

The Tenth Annual National Pro-Amateur Golf Championship, sponsored by Bing Crosby, opens its three-day tourney next Friday, January 12, with some of the greatest names in pro golf listed in the roster of players. Among them will be Francis Oiumet, Gene Sarazen and Walter Hagen.

Famous names will also appear in the amateur ranks, with the announcement that among those slated to play will be Bob Hope, Bob Crosby, Phil Harris and Mickey Rooney.

The first day's play will be at the Cypress Point Club, the second day at the Monterey Peninsula Country Club and the third at Pebble Beach.

Last year the gross gate was around $30,000 before taxes. Crosby pays all the bills including the $10,000 pro prizes. Proceeds go to charity, in this case youth activities of the Community Chest.

Gallery fee is $2 Friday, $2.50 Saturday and $3 Sunday or a flat $5 for a season ticket, including admission to Del Monte Forest.

Public Invited To Sound-Color Films On Canadian Art

Sound films in color of the life and art of Canadian painters, including West Wind—the story of Tom Thomson, woodsman and guide, as well as landscape painter—and A. Y. Jackson, Canadian interpreter of Arctic landscape, are to be shown at Carmel Arts Association Galleries on Tuesday night, January 9, at 8:15 p.m.; open to the public. A cordial invitation is also extended to the public to attend the exhibition of Canadian paintings, arranged by the National Gallery of Canada, at the California Palace of the Legion of Honor in San Francisco, open from January 5 to January 30. This collection of representative Canadian paintings is at present on a nationwide tour of the United States and has already attracted keen interest in Washington, New York an dother American cities.

SAVE YOUR JOBLESS PAY!

Starting this issue on the Feature Page is the first of a series of articles prepared by the California Newspaper Publishers Association for distribution to member newspapers throughout the state to be published as a public service.

The Pine Cone departs from its policy of reserving its space for local matters to print these articles because they not only point out what ails the California Unemployment Insurance Fund, but suggest how something can be done about it.

Conclusions were drawn and recommendations offered only after an extensive study made by a committee selected for the purpose. The subject is neither political nor controversial, and it concerns all of us.

Council Discusses Gasoline, Police Cars And Liquor Zoning At First Meeting Held In New City Hall

The Carmel City Council met in regular meeting Wednesday night for the first time in the new and permanent city hall, formerly All Saints' Church, and took up a variety of matters which included confusion over the gasoline bids sent in, acceptance of a bid for the purchase of a new police prowl car and first reading of an ordinance enlarging the present zone for off-sale liquor licenses.

Bids for city-used gasoline were submitted by the seven major oil companies and after lengthy discussion, the matter was referred to City Clerk Peter Mawdsley for further study.

The bid, one of two following specifications, for the police car was accepted from Beattie Motors for a 1951 Ford 6, with trade-in allowance for the '47 Ford now in use. Chief of Police Clyde Klaumann reported that the Monterey Police Department has recently purchased four cars of the same model and are ordering two more.

The new ordinance changing the liquor license zone allows liquor to be sold only in connection with another business, such as a grocery store. Two such establishments, formerly outside the zone, will now be included.

Councilman Donald Craig reported that the fire siren has broken down three times recently and that the temporary measure of using the siren of the fire truck is far from satisfactory. It can only be heard in a limited area and should a fire break out at night it could be hazardous. He asked permission to rent a suitable siren until such time as a permanent one can be purchased from a commercial company or one obtained from either Army or Civilian Defense surplus.

An urgent appeal from Mrs. Frank Ringland, representing the American Women's Volunteer Services, was made at the meeting asking for cooperation in establishing a hospitality house for members of the armed forces. Mayor Allen Knight appointed her as an ex-officio representative of the city to call a meeting of service club and other organization members to discuss the matter. During World War II, the Carmel American Legion Hall was turned over to the USO for the duration.

Kenneth Omer asked permission to remove two pines and one oak tree on Junipero between Eighth and Ninth to make a double driveway for a triple garage and the council agreed to let the two pines come down to allow for a single driveway.

Another tree request from Mrs. Astrid Sisson to remove an acacia from her property on Casanova between Twelfth and Thirteenth was denied, as was also a request from Mrs. R. J. Hilgers to fill in a canyon on Second Street with brush and cuttings.

Mayor Knight, Chief Klaumann, City Attorney Thomas K. Perry and Councilman John Chitwood announced they were leaving early the next morning (Thursday) for Sacramento to attend a special session of the League of California Cities on the subject of Civilian Defense.

A claim from George Cain for property damage from an explosion during a fire at his home two months ago was again denied. In response to a plea from the city that merchants keep the streets and sidewalks clean, a letter was read from the Carmel Business Association promising cooperation on the matter.

Chief Klaumann announced that a meeting of police chiefs in this zone will be held in Carmel on January 11 and asked permission, which was granted, to use the city hall for the meeting place.

As though it weren't bad enough to hear The Thing on every radio program, juke box, kids beating out the time and teen-agers whistling it—one turns on the Rose Bowl game and what happens? THE THING! It has been suggested that a long-playing record be made of The Thing, Goodnight, Irene and Music, Music Music. It would be a wonderful gift for certain people and would, therefore, solve a lot of problems. But, who would be that mean?

The season to be merry has passed and we won't have to face it again for a little over 11 months. The season not to be merry is hard upon us. There are the Christmas bills to be paid, income tax, automobile licenses and the extra boxes of kleenex for colds and tears. At times we wish we had the sparkling enthusiasm for a story as has a reporter who writes for the Philippines Mail. In describing a convention held recently in Los Angeles of the Filipino Federation of America, he writes: "General Hilario Camino Moncado, the founder and president, was the hero of the occasion. He shone like the morning star after a dark night. He was the picture of happiness and joy. Upon his face was written hope from helplessness and salvation from hopelessness. All evening he was all smiles. He shook the hands of everyone. And it was a warm handshake that carries with it the greetings of a warm and good heart. Madame Diana Moncado was a vision of loveliness. Her face was like that of an angel. Her voice was angelic. Her whole appearance was a vision to behold. It was easy to see that General Moncado and Madame Moncado love each other with a tender, eternal love. They had the freshness of Spring, the luxuriance of Summer, the mellow beauty of Autumn and the silent vigor of Winter."

Saw Bill O'Malley on the street the other day and stopped to ask how the sale of Two Little Nuns was getting along. He told us that apparently the volume is 1950's "sleeper" in the book-selling business. With little actual promotion the small book of cartoons has been selling at a tremendous rate. One never exactly knows why such a thing happens but it is quite possible that the charming O'Malley cartoons reached the public at a time when such gentle humor was greatly needed . . . At a time when people wanted to forget momentarily the A-bomb and the H-bomb. The volume is published by Extension, a Catholic magazine published in Chicago, and all proceeds go to charity.

Harry Dixon (or H. Vernor, to you) learned this week that his novel, Something for Nothing, published by Harper's last spring, is soon to go into a French edition. We saw the dust cover for the English edition and if the staid British can do that, what in the world is going to happen when a French artist gets to work on it? He is busy revising a second novel and expects to have it completed in the near future. Incidentally, Harry got A Thing for Christmas.

BEGINNERS FOLK DANCE CLASS

Because of popular demand a special folk dance class for beginners is being added to the Carmel Adult School program. The class, under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Hall will meet on Thursday evenings at 8:00 in the Carmel High School Cafeteria. The advanced folk dance class meets on Tuesday evenings and is open to students with previous instruction only.

Science Series To Be Featured At Adult School

Interesting new features to be added to the Carmel Adult School program include two lecture series and two new classes.

The Progress of Science illustrated lecture series directed by Miss Enid Larson will be given on six successive Tuesday evenings starting on January 16 with The Story of Palomar by Dr. L. W. of the California Institute of Technology. In addition the series will include The Redwoods and Time in Human Affairs, Professor Ralph W. Chaney, University of California, Mollusks and Man, Psychiatry and Human Welware, Cancer—What Can I Do About It?, and African Plants for American Gardens.

Another feature is The Textile Institute on the care and selection of fabrics consisting of four lec-demonstrations. It is designed to acquaint consumers, merchants, their salespeople, dry cleaners, lanuderers, dressmakers, and decorators with the latest developments in todays fast changing field of fabric manufacturing and finishing. Emphasis will be placed on identification, value, and care. The leader of the institute will be Miss Jessie Caplin, specialist on textile fabrics. Each year Miss Caplin is leader of training programs at Roos Brothers, the Emporium and other San Francisco stores, as well as in similar stores in other American cities.

Investment Policies for the Individual for the first time on the Monterey Peninsula. This class will be taught by Paul Tescher and will meet on Wednesday evenings. The course is patterned after the University of California's extension course on investments.

Producing the Radio Program instructed by Richard Brautigam will be an introduction to broadcasting as an industry and an art. It will be carried on as a laboratory situation and the class will produce a series of radio programs which they will write, direct, act in, create sound effects for and ultimately broadcast over KMBY, Monterey.

For additional information and copies of the complete schedule either phone or call at the evening school office between 7 and 10 p.m. Monday through Thursday nights — Sunset School — phone 7-3020.

Edward Weston Is Featured In Article In Photog Magazine

Carmel Highlands' Edward Weston, along with Ansel Adams and Paul Strand, are featured in an article appearing in the January issue of American Photography, which presents in its pages a mid-century review of this interesting form of art expression. The article was written by Dody, who is a Pine Cone advertising staff member, and a student of Weston.

An introduction by the editor begins: "Of the classicists, Edward Weston and Ansel Adams in the West and Paul Strand in the east come most often to attention. They have superficial characteristics in common, yet their work is easy to distinguish as Dody points out in these pages."

The article is illustrated with numerous examples of the works of the three artists.

Dody writes: "Fortunately there is no necessity to rank these men one, two, three, for the very reason of their broad differences. Each greatness is unique, and thus incomparable; it must be relished for its own merits."

PADRES GO TO HOLLISTER TONIGHT

A Peninsula basketball natural which has always brought plenty of hoop thrills will be staged at the Carmel High School gym tomorrow night when the colorful Monterey Toreadores clash with the Carmel Padres. The two meetings between these teams last season saw the most hotly contested court squabbles engaged in by either team. The Padres nipped Monterey in both tussles, but the Toreadores will be out to even the score tomorrow night. Neither Carmel nor Monterey has enjoyed signal success so far this season, and both will hope to hit their winning stride tomorrow night. Monterey is sparked by the most colorful casaba artist in the CCAL, one Lawrence Segovia, a flashy driving guard who has baffled all his oposition in pre-season practice games. A terrific dribbler and a high speed flyer all the way, Segovia dotes on intercepting wayward passes and driving the length of the court for lay-ins. The Toreadores possess plenty of height in Vince Vevilaqua and the lofty Howell.

Carmel will attempt to counter the exploits of Segovia and Company with the spot shooting of Bob Updike and Henry Overin, coupled with the rebounding skill of Neils Reimers, Lannie Doolittle, and Stu Emery. The Padres have been cold to their shooting all season and figures to improve after a week of lengthy practice sessions. The return to action of Niels Reimers has strengthened the red and gray in the shooting department and has helped the backboard control.

A preliminary clash between the speedy lightweight teams could well steal the spotlight from the varsity encounter. Both schools boast lightweight teams which are above the average and fans should get their money's worth in the preliminary alone. Lightweight game starts at 7 o'clock with the varsity tilt scheduled for 8:30.

Tonight, the Padre hoop squads travel to Hollister for league games with the Haybalers. Not much is known concerning the Hollister cagers, but they looked extremely capable in outscoring Pacific Grove in the CCAL Jamboree. A win for Coach Leavitt's Padrecitos will put the little Padres on top of the B division heap.

ROSE BOWL GAME

Numerous Carmelites flocked down to Pasadena for the Rose Bowl game over the New Year's week-end, among them Mr. Fred Godwin, Mr. Fred Mylar, Peggy Aitkenhead, Marion Erduna, Dr. Ray Brownell, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Cook, Sunny Cook, Mr. Webster Street, Mrs. Lois Dunham, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Taylor, Dr. and Mrs. Chester Hare, Rickey Masten, Warren Masten, Gay Masten, Jimmy Hare, Mrs. Les Dewar, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Fehring and their daughter, Janet, and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Weaver.

THROUGH THE HOOP

Carmel's Annual Invitational Basketball Tournament has been given the green light by the California Interscholastic Federation and is scheduled for March 2 and 3. The following schools have been invited to the tourney and will probably be seen in action—Fremont, last year's winner, Gustine, Patterson, Tracy, winner of the San Joaquin tourney this year, Golroy, Monterey, Pacific Grove, and either King City or Gonzales. The B division of the CCAL will have a new member next season when the Gilroy Mustangs will desert the Santa Clara Valley League and become a member of the local circuit. The schools in the Santa Clara Valley loop are too big for the Mustangs and the league is overloaded with schools . . . Linament trade was brisk in Carmel last Saturday as the old Padre grads tried to work out the affects of their comeback against the 1950 kids. The old timers, Clayton Neill, Tom Hefling, Max Hodges, Dick Gargiulo, Paul Warner, and Lew McCreery, put up a brave stand against the sprouts, but bowed by a few points . . . viewpoint, after watching Clayton Neill in action last Friday—Stanford university missed a bet in missing Clayton, still a perfectly conditioned athlete after three year's layoff . . . looked good to see Dick Gargiulo flashing his blinding speed again. Dick will see action with the Stanford grid next year . . . Paul Artellan and his lightweight alumni gang found the current lightweight squad pretty tough to handle and took a back seat to Leavitt's laughing lights. Too much Colman, Laugenour, our Padre vasity by roughing them up, 32 to 19. The best high school team to show here this season, Shafter looked the part of league champions, which they are in the Bakersfield section . . . Don't forget the Youth Center benefit games on February 3. Leading the parade will be the colorful Santa Barbara All-Americans against the Peninsula All-Stars. The CHS lightweights and varsity will tussle with Live Oak high in the prelims. Henry Overin continues as the top Peninsula scorer should be an interesting duel when Overin and Segovia hook up tomorrow night. For basketball fireworks, don't miss the Monterey-Carmel clash at the Padre gym tomorrow night.

If you really want to save, better rush over to HOLMAN'S DEPARTMENT STORE. Wonderful values, and the sale (which started yesterday) runs through January. Yardage and drapery fabrics are on sale at a great reduction. Latter are 48 inches wide. Values run to $2.95, selling at $1.59. Fabrics are modern, provincial and floral, come in a wide range of color combinations and weaves. Incidentally, there's a special low price on making draperies, too. This includes measuring, making, and hanging. Oh yes, and there are scramble tables — cottons, rayons, wools, bedspreads, comforters, towels, curtains, etc. But one of the very best items is the Cannon fine muslin sheets. 81x108, they're selling at $2.34! Wonderful values in all 46 departments, and don't overlook coats, suits, dresses, skirts, knit dresses, robes, wool jersey blouses. And if you want to save on hosiery, you can get super sheer and budget sheer, sizes 8½-10½ (selected irregulars) at 89c a pair! Rayon tricot gowns, too, sizes 34-36, values to $5.95 selling at $1.95!

We discovered as we were walking down Calle Principal in Monterey the other day that there's a really exciting sale going on at THE NANCY LOU DRESS SHOP. Dresses have been slashed to half-price, and they have everything from casuals to dressy cocktail dresses, and lots of garbardines, woola, wool jerseys, crepes and cottons! Lots of half-sizes, by the way. Oh, yes, an item that should interest many housewives, there's a whole rack of cotton housedresses in large sizes at $3.00! (Formerly $6.95).

They have coats on sale at THE NANCY LOU DRESS SHOP too—sharkskin, gabardines, tweeds, coverts,— and they're $10 off. Prices run ordinarily from $35 to $50, now slashed to $25-$40. Better hurry over before it's too late. THE NANCY LOU DRESS SHOP is located at 316 Calle Principal; phone is 5-4656.

There's a wonderful sale going on over at THE COLLEGIATE DRESS SHOP in Monterey. Everything is reduced to clear, and we really saw some marvelous bargains. F'r instance jersey dresses—one in black with a slash of red in front (long-sleeved) for $15.98! (formerly $19.95). And a gray with red pockets at $7.95 (formerly $14.95). There's a sleeveless green jersey, too, at $6.98, and a dress with a chartreuse top and skirt in diagonal stripes, 3/4 sleeves, now only $7.98. And a Betty Barclay sleeveless cinammon corduroy for $7.98! Lots of others, too. We also noticed coats on sale, some fur-trimmed, some shorties, some camel's hair — one beauty, very smart, in a natural shade reduced from $45 to $29.98. Blouses on sale, too, all sorts of lovely things!

While we're on the subject of sales, wanna buy a house? Not only a house but a business-zoned property, two lots, complete with a 20x30 fire-proof business building and four studios in downtown Monterey? The house is old . . . has three stories, is picturesque; huge living room. Could probably be converted for business use (such as antique shop). Good location for craft center, or art-school, or something-or-other with little shops in back. Looks the way Telegraph Hill used to look. Worth lots of money, will increase in value, but owners will sell cheaply. Phone 2-4869 or Mrs. Wall at 7-3881.

Winter Program Begins For All Saints' Youngsters

Beginning next Sunday, winter activities for youngsters of All Saints' Episcopal Church will be developed under a three-way program at the new parish hall, Lincoln and Eighth.

At 9:30, the Church School starts its new term and the children will enjoy the expanded facilities that eliminate the overcrowding of past years. The old building is now the city hall.

The Young People's Fellowship holds its first 1951 gathering at 7 p.m. and it is announced that eighth-graders are invited. Thomas L. (Jimmy) Griffin is in charge.

Children's choir meetings are being started again and the first one was held yesterday afternoon.

Madrigal Singers Delightful; True Renaissance Christmas Spirit Felt At Sunset Concert Friday Evening

The Festival of Music and Dance presented at the Sunset Auditorium last Friday night by the Carl Cherry Foundation was greeted by an enthusiastic audience, and the house was packed. Even the balcony was full.

Everyone was delighted with the extraordinary beauty and clarity of the singing of the Berkeley Madrigal Guild whose voices, under the direction of Eileen Washington, recaptured the spirit of the Renaissance. The costumes were authentically Renaissance, too, and seemed especially appropriate to the Yuletide season.

Sopranos were Dorothy Renzi, and Hilda Lawrence. Mezza-sopranos Alison Ralston and Jean Simmons. Contraltos Virginia Walston and Mary Vaughan. Carl Siegert was the tenor, Ellsworth Walston the baritone and Roland Snook the bass. Eileen Washington accompanied the group at the harpsichord which had been especially purchased for the concert by the Carl Cherry Foundation.

The program began with English madrigals. Then there was a lute song tenor solo, two songs with harpsichord accompaniment, two harpsichord solos, and then three groups of carols: carols of the advent of the nativity, cradle songs and carols of epiphany. The individual voices were uniquely brilliant and clear in tone, and could be heard quite distinctly even in ensemble. But the Madrigal Guild excels in its ensemble work; each singer is selected for his or her ability to sing in ensemble as well as well as for individual tonal quality.

Especially impressive, perhaps, was the control of the singers. Their voices either in group or in solo were quite as clear and beautiful in tone when they were singing very softly as when they were projecting more loudly.

The audience was so delighted with the program that they applauded incessantly and finally persuaded the Madrigal Guild to sing an encore, Here We Go A-Wasselling.

The second half of the program featured dancer Henry Kersh, who was accompanied by Gene Perrine at the piano and Adrian Negrette with the flute. He began his program with a suite by Purcell in four parts. This was followed by a Choral Pavane with the Madrigal singers, Ground by Croft, and two pieces from the Spanish school of Scarlatti, Padre Angles and Padre Soler. The last dance was the Angel of the Annunciation by Gluck. The program ended with a tableau taken from paintings of the madonna by von Eyck and Memlinc, and the singing of Adeste Fidelis by the Madrigal Guild. The most moving dance, perhaps, was Gluck's Angel of the Annunciation.

Everyone left the auditorium feeling that they had had more than a glimpse of the real spirit of Christmas and the meaning it once had in the Renaissance world.

The use of the Sunset Auditorium was donated free to the Carl Cherry Foundation for the program, and the Carmel Music Society graciously lent them the piano. The harpsichord was made by Julius Wahl, one of the two harpsichord-makers in the country. It will remain at the Carl Cherry Foundation to be used in Future concerts.—D. F.

LYLE COOPERS BACK

Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Cooper got back New Year's Day from a two weeks' trip east. They left December 16, went to Waseca, Minnesota, where they spent Christmas with Mr. Cooper's parents, Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Tyrholm. Then, after a couple of days in Minneapolis, they drove on home.

They say that they had a lovely trip, but it was 20 below zero in Minnesota and they are glad to get back to Carmel which seems positively balmy in comparison.

Presenting the New 1951 Cadillac

Far More Beautiful... Gorgeous New Interiors... and an Even Finer High-Compression Engine!

TODAY, we are privileged to present the new Cadillac for 1951—finer and more wonderful from every conceivable standpoint. . . . Numerous refinements in exterior design have made it more lovely to behold—while wholly new interiors, so rich in fabric and tailoring that they defy description, impart a sense of luxury that is simply beyond compare. . . . And, oh, the things that have been done to make it more gentle to handle—and more comfortable to ride in! The changes in this regard are manifold—and the results are a revelation. The car's quietness is now akin to silence; driving is all but a response to your wish; comfort leaves literally nothing to be desired. To ride or drive is to relax—and to rest. . . . The great master engine has also been refined—down to the smallest details. Its voice is closer to a whisper; its power application is faster; and it's even smoother in operation. . . . And there is an even finer Hydra-Matic Drive—with a new reverse for easier shifting, and for "rocking" the car in sand or snow. . . . There is new steadiness on the road—better balance on turns and curves—easier and softer braking. And throughout the chassis are vital improvements which add to endurance and dependability. . . . All in all, here is new lustre for the Cadillac name—and a far higher standard for the automotive world. . . . There are ten distinctive body types and four individual series—the "Sixty-One," the "Sixty-Two," the "Sixty Special," and the incomparable "Seventy-Five". . . . Why not come in and see them today? We'd be most happy to see you—and we are certain you'd find it an interesting and enlightening experience.

The Time Has Come .

By Kippy Stuart

Have you ever taken the route over the Santa Cruz mountains to San Francisco? It is a road well worth enjoying. I suppose, if a fellow is in one of these rushes to get some where, the Bay Shore will do a better job, but think what he will miss? The road itself is a miracle of engineering, with corners banked to perfection, and when you reach the ridge of the mountains and skim along in the clouds, you can pretend to be Super-Man.

The natural forest, growing close to the road on both sides, holds some of the finest speciment of natural California growth. Redwoods reach for the sky, and banked beneath the redwoods, are fields of Madrone trees, with their red boles, giving contrast to the dark green background. The foliage of the madrone tree is nothing to speak of this time of year, but you can look through long vistas of the madrone's red tree trunks, marching off into the heart of the forest.

Then suddenly you will come upon a shiny-leafed bay tree, the leaves holding the sunlight and mirrowing the sunlight back to the eye. A toyon, fresh with winter berries will stick its head out of the crowd, giving a feeling of Christmas to the landscape.

There is one stretch on the Santa Cruz highway, just before the road enters Los Gatos, that is crowded with acacia trees. I wonder who planted those acacia trees along that road? Acacia is not indigenous to California, so some one person must be responsible for that golden mass that will lighten the world in the Spring.

Genista and wild broom have their part beautifying this landscape, but it will take an experienced eye to pick out these two shrubs since neither are in bloom at this season. I started from Carmel for Palo Alto about 11:00 in the morning, and arrived in Palo Alto around 6:00 in the evening. My hosts were sure I had fallen off the mountain, since the time to make that distance is about two hours and a half. Well, I didn't fall off the mountain, but I did take every side road that presented itself; I got out of the car to pet the boles of madrone trees, to bow respectfully to the mighty redwoods, and to throw a kiss toward the glistening bay trees. This was the first trip I have taken alone, and since I was not delivering a passenger anywhere, at a stated time, I did myself proud by rambling alone to my heart's content.

Never again the Bay Shore road for me. I'd rather wander through those mountains than get lost in the crush of San Francisco shopping. Me? I guess I'm just a "mountain girl", after all.

British Plan Of Helping Aged Told In Letter

How a housing project in England works to take care of aged and lonely people is told in an interesting letter from an official of one of the homes there. The letter was sent in reply to a contribution from a local resident who asked that his name not be mentioned.

The letter reads, in part: "I must have told you that in the borough we formed an Old Peoples Association to run clubs, a meals-on-wheels service, a Home Help Service to visit lonely old people. Originally we didn't know how we could start hostels, but, as you know, several of us got together as a Housing Society managed to procure Mitchell House. We should never have been able to do this, but for a generous grant from the Lord Mayor's Air-Raid Distress Fund. Mitchell House proved such a happy home to 14 old people that we felt we must push forward for more homes and just two years ago Abbotsford was opened. As our list of applicants was so long and the cases so distressing we planned a third home which we have just opened—Raleigh House. These were all old houses converted to give a single room for each person, communal lounge and dining room. I wish you could see some of these people. We take them on necessity alone and some of them had never known a real home.

"General conditions in England have been steadily improving until recently when so much expenditure and energy has had to be put into preparations for war.

"I should like to take this chance of thanking you for your interest in our old folk. Sincerely, Id. W. Rooks, 35 The Manor Drive, Worcester Park, Surrey."

In order that the little tots would not miss the celebration of New Year's, an hourly celebration was held in coordination with New York, Midwest, etc., time, and by midnight all of the children had celebrated New Year's.

Among those present were Skipper, Lucinda and Mardi Lloyd, Bee, Red, John and Honey Williams, Alice and Bos Williams, Wendy Millard, Natasha Doner, Oliver Wilgress, Tony Weaver, Jennifer and Gill Feeley, Jim, Steve and Margot Hopper, and Nancy and Melissa Lofton.

Various and assorted parents supervised the evening's activities, while others went next door to the Millards' where a much more sedate party was going on for grown-ups.

Word At Last From Upton

Finally a letter came in from John Upton, former Carmel Pine Cone staff writer, this week. John is very happy in Ajijic, the little Indian village on Lake Chapala which was first discovered (insofar as the foreigner was concerned) in the '20s by D. H. Lawrence.

Upton is inhibating a converted Indian house 'belong to Toby Schneebaum, New York artist at present in the States; and he is working on a part-time basis entertaining tourists at the local Posada and teaching Spanish.

He had a wonderful trip down on a boat from Ensenada which landed him in Manzillo. All the passengers were Mexican and spoke nothing but Spanish, but as Upton speaks fluent Spanish he had no trouble. He hit off at once for Ajijic where he has been living for the past two months.

They took in Mexico City, Cuernavaca, Taxco, Acapulco, Vera Cruz, Oaxaca, and Lake Chapala. They met up with Paul and Barbara Porter in Mexico City and had a gay time taking in night-sports; and spent two weeks at Lake Chapala over the Christmas holidays. Bert liked Chapala better than anywhere else in Mexico, and that is where he intends to live.

They say the worst stretch of road they hit was the Los Laureles grade between Salinas and the Carmel Valley on their way home. Mexican roads, says Bert, are highways in comparison.

Flint-Swanson Wedding

Married Saturday, December 30, at All Saints' Episcopal Church, were Sally Flint and Jack Swanson, two students of the Carmel Art Institute. Rev. Arthur B. Seccombe officiated.

The altar was banked with white lilies and green ferns, and tall white candles provided an impressive background as the young couple knelt and exchanged their vows.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, C. D. Flint of Sacramento, wore a navy blue suit with a white hat, and carried a corsage of orchids and bouvardia. The maid of honor, Calar Desmond of Sacramento, a cousin of the bride, chose a suit of American beauty red and carried white carnations and American beauty roses.

Reed Swanson, brother of the groom, was best man.

Mrs. C. D. Flint, mother of the bride, wore a gray dress with navy accessories and an orchid corsage. Mrs. C. L. Swanson, the groom's mother, wore a gown of royal blue with blue accessories, and her corsage was of white bouvardias.

Following the ceremony, a gala reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Dillon in Carmel. Champagne, canapes and wedding cake were served to the 60 guests who attended.

Immediately after the reception, the newlyweds left for Oregon, where they will honeymoon until January 15.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Swanson intend to continue their studies at the Carmel Art Institute, and they plan to live in the Carmel Valley.

Save Your Jobless Pay!

By Ross Graham

Ed. Note: This is the first of a series of ten special articles.

California's unemployment insurance system is facing a financial crisis.

Despite record high employment, the reserve fund steadily is being reduced.

The year 1950, it is estimated, will have brought in contributions of about $167,000,000.

But experts in unemployment insurance statistics estimate that the total benefits paid out will amount to about $190,000,000.

This, during a year in which California had the highest employment figures in its history.

During 1949, when employment was less, but still was quite good, benefits paid out amounted to $253,000,000, while contributions paid in were $118,000,00 short of that amount.

This trend could reduce the state unemployment insurance fund to nothing, were it not for provisions in the law that require higher contributions when the reserve fund reaches a predetermined low point.

More alarming is the fact that the 1949 high benefit payments were made when the labor force in California was only 3,953,000 people. Today it is at least 4,640,000.

What will happen when business conditions recede from their present high level is not anybody's guess — it is a certainty.

Higher contributions — or no fund!

This alarming condition is not entirely the result of "chiseling" or fraud. Certain basic faults in the act also are responsible for the excess of outgo over income.

But these loopholes together with chiseling and outright fraud are regarded as responsible for benefits amounting to about $60,000,000 to $75,000,000 a year.

This amount of money, if it were not being wrongfully paid, would add to the fund in 1950. Instead, final accounting for the year is expected to show a $23,000,000 decrease in the fund.

But this is not all. If every employer in California paid into the fund 2.7 per cent of his payroll, the present maximum rate, on an estimated 7 billion-dollar payroll for 1950, the taxes so collected would be insufficient to meet benefit payments for the year.

It should be understood that workers, or employees, no longer pay any part of their wages or salaries into the unemployment insurance fund. The entire cost is born by employers.

This resulted from a change in the law in 1946 by which the 1 per cent deduction from employees' pay checks was diverted from unemployment insurance to disability; or sickness, insurance.

The old excuse of the "chiseler," that "I paid my money into the fund, I am just getting it back," no longer holds true.

In fact, it never was true.

The employee never paid but a small fraction of what would be the premium on an insurance policy, issued by a private insurance company.

But some chiselers have taken out many times the "principal" that their premiums (1 per cent of their wages) paid for, and any private insurance company would go broke under such circumstances.

It is not impossible for the State fund to go broke under the present circumstances.

The unemployment insurance fund has been depleted some $127,000,000 since the loss of employees' contributions in 1946.

This is because, instead of regarding unemployment insurance as "insurance", too many workers have regarded it as a form of public relief.

Instead of a means of buying food and housing for their families when misfortune put them out of work, they have regarded it as a fund to

WAGE PEACE ON EARTH!

Blessed be he who tries all paths to peace!
Despite the scornful smile, the mocking word.
In him at least the agony shall cease,
The self-reproach through all one's being heard.

How long! how long through ages dark with blood
Has victory turned to smite the victor's face!
That which was won so dearly by the sword
Defeats the conqueror. All but changes place.

The way of violence is the way of death.
Is there no small, no humble way untried?
The will to stillness or the strength to wait?
Oh now before the war-doomed young have died
Let us repay the debt we owe for breath:
Wage peace on earth! No effort is too great.

—Dora Hagemeyer.

FLIGHT 27

Higher than bird flight, wide wings bear
The mainliner, poised on a column of air.
The weave of autumn landscape lies
Below, all wonder and quick surmise,
Earth with its veins of silver flood;
Rivers and creeks, a dragon's blood,
The estuary, a silver scroll.
And geometric miles unroll
A mountain range where giants keep
Their sprawling attitude of sleep.
Inquisitive clouds come floating up
Like fragrant steam from a Chinese cup.
(Why must the volatile earth insist
On veils of illusion, Maya, mist?)
A destination is only part
Of the heaven-singing, grateful heart
When far-stretched silver wings pursue
Earth's vision-rim of antique blue.

—Margaret Lewis Albanese.

THE ELEMENT

See how the fish moves in his element:
Water to fin as fin to water:
Silver to green and green to silver:
Motion and stillness, silence and sound:
The being, the element cohere.

See how the hand is of the body:
Finger-touch and finger-feel:
Cold to warm and hard to soft:
Soothing to pain, or the pain soothed:
The subject, the object conspire.

But how the mind wastes in its loneliness:
For virtue, sin: for giving, gain:
Hatred for loving, for blessing the curse:
Man—his splendid element, goodness—
Dies in life like the fish out of water.

—Carl. Sylvester.

New Volumes —

A work of fiction to those interested in early California history is Cry Above the Winds by J. B. Bartlett. The novel deals with the period of the state's history in the turbulent period in the 1830's and is chiefly situated in and around Monterey.

Although not a Californian by birth, Mrs. Bartlett has lived on the West Coast, chiefly in the Southern part of the state for a number of years and has been fascinated by its early history. She has done a great deal of research and began this novel because of her interest in Padre Vicente Sarria, who struggled valiantly to save the Missions during one of the particularly militant periods in their history.

Another one of the characters used in this novel is Juan Bautista Alvarado, who later led a revolt against Mexico and set up a government dedicated to "native son" rule.

The story itself begins when Timothy LaMotte lands at Monterey and feels that here is the land of opportunity. It was certain that Mexican rule would be ended within the next few years and the future would be his if he watched the local scene ambitiously. Mrs. Bartlett unwinds the plot with skill. Cry Below the Winds is a welcome addition to the fiction lists of the early California period. The volume is published by William Morrow and Company.

Another interesting volume on the California scene is one called Sequoia National Park, A Geological Album, by Francis E. Matthes and edited by Fritiof Fryxell. It was published this month by the University of California Press.

Mrs. Matthes has interpreted the principal features of the fascinating Sequoia country pictorially, and more than 100 photographs are included in the book. Nontechnical annotations are shown and the result is like a conducted tour of the fabulous region.

The photographs include views ranging from the Sierra foothills a few hundred feet above sea level to spectacular Mount Whitney, highest point in the United States with an altitude of 14,496 feet.

With the scenes arranged in logical sequence, many geological phenomena are presented in typical field relations. Effects of glacial action as well as that caused by avalanches are shown graphically.

Mr. Matthes, who died in 1948, began his study of the vast Western mountain range in 1925 when he worked with the United States Geographical Survey. He had served with this organization since 1896. In this volume he received the cooperation with the National Park Service. Mr. Fryxell, who edited the volume, is a noted naturalist and geologist and is Professor of Geology at Augustana College in Illinois. He is the author of the Tetons: Interpretation of a Mountain Landscape. This was published by the University of California Press in 1946.

In the forward, Mr. Fryxell writes: "When the Second World War made serious inroads on his cherished plans, Matthes was compelled to defer the completion of the Sequoia monograph until his retirement. He was retained on the staff of the Geological Survey more than three years beyond the statutory retirement age of seventy.

"To meet a demand which has grown more insistent with the years — especially since his death — the Sequoia albums are reproduced with a view to making them available to all, and in a form suitable for use alike by the campfire, on the trail and in the library. Within these covers are combined the contents of three albums, which have undergone no changes other than were necessary to make the text consistent and concise, and so simple and clear as to be understood by all."

From 1925 to 1935 Mr. Matthes published a Geological History of Yosemite Valley and it was then that he laid the groundwork for his

STRAY BITS...

Everyone seems to be glad the holidays are over, and those enchanting Christmas decorations which looked so gay and glittering when they went up a few weeks ago began to look rather tawdry by New Year's . . . There were too many parties, and most people reached the saturation point long before December 31. Lots of people were laid up with flu, colds, etc., including Loli Willox (who was rushed off to the hospital New Year's Eve), Mrs. Jack Geisen, and Peggy Stebbins. Anyway, January is upon us, and a long, season of sobering reflections . . . We rather imagine it will be several months before anyone has another party.

Especially for the New Year, the Pacific Ocean put on a fine display of color and brilliance Sunday. People who drove down the coast were astonished. At Point Lobos, the sea was wild, peculiar, blue-green color; and farther down a deep, deep, rich, almost purple blue. The hills shone golden through the green of grass, and the animals were lying down in the fields or cavorting about. There was a whole crop of tiny calves on the Doud ranch; one was so small we at first mistook it for a large mushroom.

Incidentally, we had a picnic on Lobos the other day, and spent several hours watching high, white waves dash against the cliffs before falling asleep in a green meadow where deer occasionally browsed and, startled by us, scrambled over the ridge-top. In the old days in Carmel, everyone went on picnics instead of having parties; in those days, however, it was still possible to build bonfires, gather abalones and mussels, and mushrooms, and anything one found. Jimmy Hopper remembers those halcyon days; and even in '30s people still did that sort of thing, although they were, of course, restricted by that fine in regard to hunting and fishing.

We understand that many newcomers in Carmel never go out on the beach, never take a walk in the woods, never go down the coast except to have dinner somewhere or other. We cannot imagine why they live here at all if it is not to take advantage of the outdoors, for this is surely one of the most beautiful places in the world. People who have been to France and Italy, say our coast-line is more impressive; and no-one who has been to Lobos finds anything with which to compare it.

Anyway, a few people still keep up the old tradition . . . including Marie Short, Jake Kenney, the Lloyds, the Russell Williams, etc. Every once in awhile people still go on picnics, wander through enchanted canyons, gather wild flowers, find crabs and mussels and mushrooms and abalones. Perhaps that's what all of us should do now that the New Year has started.

Sequoia studies. Fryxell writes: "His Yosemite experience was applicable to many of the problems in this area and the Sequoia research proceeded with relative rapidity and was completed by the fall of 1936. But the preparation of a final report was likely to prove quite another matter. This, Matthes knew, would have to be fitted into a program which included other projects and was constantly being complicated by new ones. The writing could be done only when circumstances permitted, and might have to be continued through a period of years. But the National Park Service urgently needed the information which he now had, to serve the immediate needs of Sequoia National Park.

To meet the situation, Matthes conceived the idea of a report which would interpret the principal geologic features of the Park —not in the conventional manner by means of a lengthy text by but the use of annotated photographs. The illustrations, carefully selected to illustrate representative geologic phenomena, would be the principal features of the report. In accord with these ideas, Matthes prepared the three folios which he came to call his "Sequoia albums." This volume, then, is the result. —By B. I.

Save Your Jobless Pay!

dip into when they wanted to take a "vacation".

Or when, for any number of reasons, they voluntarily quit their jobs, with the purpose of getting $25 a week, or as much of it as possible, for a maximum of 26 weeks, or as many weeks as possible.

Some went fishing. Others visited relatives. Some just loafed.

The result of all this may be very grave.

The unemployment insurance law provides that when the balance in the unemployment insurance fund is less than one and one-half times the amount paid out in unemployment insurance benefits the preceding year, the Commission may invoke a tax rate of 2.7 per cent on all subject employers.

As already stated, with maximum employment in 1950, even this figure would not bring in as much money as is paid out.

So the alternative is for the fund to "go broke" or to raise the tax on employers to 3 per cent, or even more, whatever is necessary to bring the unemployment insurance fund up to the required balance.

When it is considered that payrolls are the largest single expenditure in any business and that other taxes are high and getting higher, this easily could result in employers going broke, with consequent increase of unemployment and decrease in sources for unemployment insurance funds.

What this situation already has done to employers and how some employers, as well as employees, are responsible for "chiseling" on the fund, will be told in succeding installments.
